CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

Impeachment Trial—Eighth Day.

WASHINGTON, April 11.

General Thomas' examination was continued.

He explained that the President instructed him to take charge, not to take possession, of the War Office; he assented to the general correctness of Burleigh's testimony before the House Committee.

Cross-examined by Mr. Butler. Was positive the President only told him to take charge of the War Office; advised that the President never said he would have the follow out of it; has not talked with General Townsend and others about his testimony given yesterday; he corrected certain portions of his testimony given before the Congressional Committee.

General W. T. Sherman was called and testified:

He arrived in Washington on the 4th of December and remained two months, coming here on business connected with the Indian Commission; about the middle of December he was assigned to duty on the board to revise the army articles; had several interviews with the President regarding the difficulties before and after Stanton's removal.

Mr. Stanbery asked—What conversation took place between you and the President on the 14th of January in regard to Stanton's removal?

Mr. Sherman replied—The question was admitted to and decided by the Senate called for, but before the eyes and ears were taken Mr.

Stanbery said he regarded the testimony sought to be introduced with respect to the case, and went on to remind the Court that the Managers had introduced much testimony in the effort to raise a presumption of criminal intent on the part of the President, testimony relating to events which occurred months before the 21st of February, and that the counsel had an equal right to bring forward rebutting testimony in order to prove the President's honest intent. In support of his position he quoted at length from the State papers of Hardy and Lord Gordon, and claimed the decisions then made were precedent to determine the present question.

Mr. Sherman replied, saying the Managers in attempting to introduce Mr. Cooper's testimony sought to prove acts, not conversations. In the course of his remarks he referred to General

Thomas as a weak vessel, compared by a little pride, and he to be a hero, and the counsel had tried to influence the Senate by recital of the President's private conversations, and that the President was characterized as unprofessional.

Mr. Butler resumed and spoke at length, with more than usual vehemence, arguing that the rules of evidence reflected on Messrs. Stanbery and Thomas, and claiming in conclusion that Stanton was a law unto himself.

Events quoted from the records of this trial to show that Mr. Butler had assumed the same position and done the same things that he now denounced as unprofessional.

Mr. Evans went into the merits of the question.

He cited and commented on the numerous charges made in the articles, which imported im-intention to the President, and argued the admissibility of the question on consideration, law, reason and justice.

When he finished the Senate took a recess of thirty minutes.

On resuming, Mr. Wilson read from the report of Mr. Hardy that the position taken by Butler was correct; and insisted that the declaration of the President might have been made so-ly with the purpose of concealing his intent.

have desired to recall him Monday, whereupon at 4:40 the Court adjourned.

House.

Mr. Woodward introduced a bill to test the constitutionality of the acts of Congress. Referred to the Judiciary Committee. The first section provides that when any act of Congress shall be vetoed by the President on the ground of unconstitutionality of any of its provisions, and shall afterwards be enacted into law, and shall be referred to the President to order the Attorney General to file in the Supreme Court a pleaded issue to test the Constitutionality of such part of the enactment as was specially objected to by him.

The Speaker presented a letter from the Justice of the Supreme Court transmitting the amendment of the rules in bankruptcy. Referred to the Committee on Revision of the United States

Laws.

Mr. Coburn introduced a bill to provide for the payment of back pensions in cases where persons have been injured, or injured or killed, by railroads, during the time they were without guardians. Referred to the Committee on Pensions.

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole and reported to the Senate. No business to be done on Friday.

NEW YORK.

General News.

New York, April 11.

The Herald's Ottawa special says: The rumors relative to the sudden disappearance of Mr.

McGe, have been entirely exploded. There is no doubt there were many accomplices in the assassination plot. All the evidence continues to point to William L. McGe, the murderer of Me-

Ge. The Herald's Montreal special says: Mr.

McGe refused to accept the address of condemence of the St. Patrick's society as she thinks it primarily responsible for her husband's murder.

Three of the prisoners have turned Queen's evidence against Whelan, whose guilt in the assassination plot. The trial will take place next week. Whelan has for years past openly admitted his participation in the murder of Me-

Ge, and in Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, and in the period in Hamilton and Ontario. In the latter city he made his appearance about the time of the Ridgeway fight, halting from Buffalo, and claiming that he was a Fenian and used such statements that the authorities there thought it necessary to arrest and detain him several days.

A Havana letter states that two negroes on the Island claim their freedom on the plea that they are working in a copper mine which belongs to England and as that country prohibits slavery they are free. This case is in the courts.

Two men in an open boat have been picked up and taken to Key West, where they are being kept in custody. They are said to be deserters from some of the prisons in Florida. It will be remembered in this connection that St. Lazar Grumfield, recently escaped with some soldiers from the Dry Tortugas.

Colored people are being arrested for practicing witchcraft.

The Herald's special Montreal dispatch says:

A. J. Devlin and B. McNamee, prominent citizens, who were known to be in sympathy with Fenian sympathizers, were arrested to-day.

The correspondence found in Ottawa implicates several prominent citizens.

wife, who were in the habit of traveling travelers, who stopped at their house, attacked a trav-
